CPV Friends and Family,

It is with great sadness that we share the news of the passing of CPV's co-founder and former CEO, Doug Egan. Doug will be fondly remembered by all of us not only for his strong leadership and commitment to building CPV from the ground up, but also for the relationships and friendships he made sure to cultivate along the way. His ability to fully commit his energy at work while balancing his personal life and his unwavering dedication to his family and friends has been and will continue to be a great inspiration to us all.

Prior to co-founding CPV, Doug enjoyed the first half of his career gaining experience in many corners of the energy industry. Doug's introduction to project development began after graduating from Cornell Law School when he worked at the law firm of Murtha Cullina Richter & Pinney in Hartford, Connecticut, representing the Connecticut Resource Recovery Authority developing and financing several waste-to-energy facilities. While raising a family with his wife, Julie, Doug's career progressed quickly serving in many roles at the Intercontinental Energy Corporation, J. Makowski Company, U.S. Generating Company and finally its successor PG&E. As the Senior Vice President for Development he oversaw numerous conventional and renewable generation projects representing thousands of megawatts of capacity which continue to operate across the United States.

With nearly two decades of project development under his belt, Doug partnered with me to found CPV in 1999. Serving as CEO, Doug's leadership and vision was instrumental in growing CPV from a small startup into an internationally recognized leader in project development. Along with his dedication to CPV's mission of modernizing the nation's electric grid, Doug was equally committed to growing and nurturing the CPV family. He never missed a company outing and insisted on including families and friends. We are grateful to Doug's wife, Julie, and sons, Cody, Jack and Aaron for sharing your husband and father with us and we extend our deepest condolences for your immense loss.

I've had the honor of knowing and working with Doug for over 25 years. He was my business partner, mentor and most importantly, my friend. He will be remembered as a man of unyielding integrity, honesty and a deep passion for life. We will miss him deeply. We ask that you keep Doug and his family in your thoughts over the days to come and that you strive to always approach life with the same energy and spirit that Doug embodied.

Sincerely,

Gary Lambert
